

The information session of separating garbages in Fujisawa.

We, Japan Housing held the information session of separating garbages in Fujisawa where many expats are residing.

Fujisawa city is little bit strict for separating garbages. For example, the residents have to put the burnable/non-burnable garbages into the designated prepaid plastic bags.

We gave the instructions of separating garbages to expats when they shifted into company housings.

However, it might have been difficult for them to understand if the rules of separating garbage is not common in their country.

Possibly, there were the some misunderstandings even though they thought they followed the rules properly.

Actually, we received the complaints from management office that some of them did not separate the garbages at all.

At the session, Japan Housing explained how to separate the garbages based on the instructions which we gave to them before.

I think space was small a bit... There were more attendees than we had expected.

Written only Japanese. It is difficult for foreigner.

Questions from expats

- Which category are the pet-bottle caps and tops of jams?
- When can we throw the magazines and milk cartons?
- Can we buy the plastic bag for burnable/non-burnable gabages around apartment?

Taking pic for seminar. We perform the seminar that we made match in needs of property. Then we gave a small present for attenders ;)

They could have better understanding through this session.

Since this session, we have not received any complaints regarding the separating garbages.
